You asked for a short, cost-effective program to transition your staff from theorists to skilled practitioners...NABE's got it for you!

How to Find and Use Economic Statistics

May 21-23, 2006 at the University of Maryland Marriott Inn and Conference Center

In just two days, your staff will take away skills they can use on their first day back in the office!

They'll be prepared to...

- Find the correct economic data more efficiently by knowing what to look for and where to find it.
- Evaluate the data by knowing what it is—and what it's not.
- Contact the agency experts who can explain the data.
- Employ the techniques used by other professionals, taught here through "case studies."

They'll connect with instructors and other attendees who will become valuable resources...including those who:

- Provide data—government agencies, Federal Reserve Board, and private sector professionals
- Use data—economists, planners, analysts, and researchers
- Offer special services—like customized data, forecasts, and economic studies

The Marriott Inn and Conference Center's special room rates are available from May 20-May 26!

The inn and conference center is located at 3501 University Boulevard East, Adelphi, MD, just outside Washington, DC on the Washington Metro.

Here's the preliminary schedule... for ongoing updates go to www.nabe.com/stats2006

Sunday, May 21, 2006
